A rhinoceros is shown from a top-down perspective, submerged in water. The rhino's head and two horns are visible, with its eyes closed. The water surface is at the top of the frame, showing ripples and reflections. The background is a deep, dark blue. The word "Volume" is written in a large, bold, white, sans-serif font across the center of the image, partially overlapping the rhino's head.

Every line, every word, seemed to mean more than its mere meaning. They were like containers, filled with the spirit of pressure that almost burst them. And yet, in this dangerous balance in which the writing existed, there was a strange beauty. It was the beauty of the tension, of the imminent discharge that could be measured by the manometer, but could never be fully explained.
